

THE WORLD'S BEST-SELLING GADGET MAGAZINE

Stuff

GADGETS MAGAZINE
www.stuffmagazine.com

WIN
AN IPAD

EXCLUSIVE!

UK'S FIRST 3D TV TEST

First! The review on p48
Win one on p123

TECH TRAVEL SPECIAL

A gadgeteer's guide
to the jetset

75 BEST GADGETS EVER

HOW MANY DO YOU OWN?

SOUNDS OF THE FUTURE

Marvel of the new-age
listening on p108

WIN!
£10,000
gadget swag
bag

XPERIA X10 TESTED
Sony's smartest Android

LONG-LIFE LAPTOPS
Big-battery netbooks tested

SWINGER'S CLUB
Staff's guide to golf - p43

May 2010 £3.99

www.stuffmagazine.com

Old skool
Fatman Wi-Tube
£400 | www.fat-man.co.uk

iPod docks are like bands; sounding good is only half the battle. If you don't nail a decent image you'll be dropped quicker than you can say "Menswear". The newest signing to Fatman's label is the old-skool-looking Wi-Tube, a 2x28W amp powered by retro valve tech. A wireless dock for your iPhone or iPod seals the deal, so long as you can get past that high-tech catheter name.

[Vs]

New skool
Roth Audio Charlie 2.1
£300 | www.rothaudio.co.uk

The retro look of the Fatman won't be to everybody's taste. If you fancy something a little less dusty and a bit more Daft Punk, have a word with Roth's mate

Charlie here. This 2.1 speaker set's sci-fi looks are backed up by a Fatman-matching wireless dock, and with 3x25W of power in its engine rooms it'll shift tunes from your iPod or computer and launch them directly down your lugs.

